DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-3, drawn to a test piece comprising a plurality of probes, and a pattern of ID information, classified in class 435, subclass 174.
 - II. Claims 4-5, drawn to an analysis method for analyzing a target substance by bonding of a target substance to the test piece, attaching ID information and obtaining information concerning probes and detecting ID information, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
 - III. Claims 6-11, drawn to an analysis system comprising means for attaching management information to test piece, means for obtaining information concerning the position of the probes, means for detecting management information and means for storing the information, classified in class 435, subclass 287.1, 702/22, for example.
2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:
 - A) Inventions I and II are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the test piece comprising probes and ID information may be used for storing nucleic acid, purification of nucleic acid, hybridization assays, diagnostic assays, amplification assays or detection assays.

B) Inventions II and III are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the method may be performed without the use of the apparatus. The apparatus requires a means for storing information, however the method may be performed with out such function.

C) Inventions I and III are directed to a test piece and to a larger apparatus used to analyze such test piece. The test piece is Inventions I and III are patentably distinct because the test piece comprising probes and ID information are structurally and functionally distinct from the apparatus comprising means for attaching management information to test piece, means for obtaining information concerning the position of the probes, means for detecting management information and means for storing the information. Therefore these inventions are novel and unobvious over one another.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by the different classifications and their divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
